Marie-Anne Delahaut, founding head of Millennia2015 –
Closing words: En route to the international conference in 2012
(Draft)

It is really impressive to see how in Millennia2015 we can go from high level technologies to major difficulties. The point is that women, whatever their background, have this innate will to be actors of development and actors for their futures. We all have in us this will and this little piece of gold. Our energy now will capitalize what has been shared today and we will go on with our active network. We will never forget the many members of Millennia2015 who work and who do not have the opportunity to travel to join us. We will do our best to succeed in our conference in 2012 with the UNESCO: a 2-day conference prepared with the Director General. I hope that we will be able to help members who work with us to join us in Paris.

I want to thank every one of you because you came with your own will and your own finance. I want to thank Cecile because this room is beautiful, I want to thank the centre of sociology and innovation of l'Ecole des Mines, it was a really pleasure to be here. I want to thank Françoise she is the "godmother" of Millennia2015, she found the name. I want to thank the international organization of La Francophonie which offered the break and the lunch.

Thank you to Dorothée and EarthTalent because thanks to Dorothée, we have a camera and we will find back our views, our discussions and our smiles on television. So we will explain this on line very soon. I also want to thank the Institute for equality of women and men of Belgium because the document has been printed thanks to them.

Thanks to the Millennium Project which is our intellectual partner.

Last but not least I want to thank the UNESCO which gives his support for Millennia2015. Millennia2015 is organized under the patronage of the UNESCO. There is more than 270 NGOs worldwide which benefit from that recognition so I really thank the UNESCO for that. Even if we have postponed the conference, I keep being weekly in touch with the UNESCO about the development of Millennia2015. I hope that you will come to Paris in 2012 for our conference.

Thank you to all for this great day!
